What is YouTube Description Code? Do you need to tell the world about your YouTube video? You are not required to have a flashy website, nor do you need a fancy channel. You do not even need to have a personal account. But you do need a YouTube description. Here is what it takes to get YouTube description code – you need keywords, video and thumbnail. If you really need to describe your video, you can do so in a good way. Google noticed an increase in the need for a description of videos, so they now provide this link in the search box. So that if someone is searching for some video, he or she will see the description – which is a link to a page on YouTube. By writing a description of your video, you can better reach to those who are looking for the video you have uploaded. What do you need to have a description of your YouTube video? – You need some keyword. Keyword or KeyWords are the words you will use to describe your video. These keywords are the things that you will put into a box to the right of your video. You might need to search the terms, but you will see that there are millions of videos that already do this, so you are not going to find anything unique. Example of a YouTube description You will see that some YouTube users have described their video and made it look like an example description of a YouTube video. You will not go to such web pages, since the site owners are compensating the page. If you want to look for such pages, you will need to search “Youtube description code”. Example of different kinds of YouTube description You can have two kinds of descriptions – a text description and a thumbnails description. Text descriptions contain some words that describe your video. While the thumbnails description contains a link to the image of your video. This picture is called the thumbnail. Thumbnail will give you the chance to describe the video – and this you will put inside a box. Keywords are the things that you write in a box. However, you need some accurate key words that describe your video. Don't use too many keywords – and make sure that you will not use the same key word more than once. You will be put on watchlist and the site's owner will not allow you to upload videos that use the same key word – so you need to be careful. You need to be careful with spelling
