Adobe Stock
(`www.adobe.com/stock`) is a great place to find stock images. This site offers royalty-free stock photos that you can use in your own projects and in your web sites, or you can purchase a license and use them in your print and online projects. The next few sections present the basic Photoshop interface and explain how to use some of the available tools. Getting started You begin your journey in Photoshop using the welcome screen or splash screen. Use the toolbars along the top of the window to change all the settings in the program. You can make the toolbars go away in several ways: You can choose View?Toolbars?Hide; you can use the keyboard shortcut Ctrl+6 or you can use the Options command (Shift+Alt+U) and choose to Hide All. As you start up Photoshop, you see the Welcome screen, which lists the Photoshop CS6 features at the top, explains how to work with images at the bottom, and offers some help tips in the middle (see Figure 1-1). Click the Help link on the bottom of the window to access that information.

Figure 1-1: The Welcome screen is your first stop in Photoshop. Getting familiar with the interface When you launch Photoshop, the window shown in Figure 1-2 appears. As usual, the workspace comprises a split area (the top of the figure) that looks like a desktop and an editable area (the bottom of the figure) that has the tools you need to create and edit images. You can drag items from the workspace to the desktop or drag items from the desktop to the workspace. You can also drag objects from the top of the screen to a new layer or to a saved image (called a preset). Use the menus across the top of the window to choose: Image?File: Access the gallery of images that you have on your computer or on the Internet. Edit?Undo: You can undo any action (image editing command) in Photoshop. If you accidentally delete an image or change a setting in a layer, you can back out of your action by selecting Undo. Select?Raster Tilt: Select the image in the workspace that you want to edit. At the bottom of the Edit menu, a raster tilt option appears. This command enables you to tilt the image and determine the best orientation

Voice: Recovering from trauma. 1. One of the most common and serious problems in long-term care today is that of residents who suffer from voice problems. The most common of these problems is dysphonia and dysphagia. Other frequent problems are hoarseness of the voice, diminished airway patency, a hoarse auscultatory murmur due to tracheal stenosis, hyperadduction of the vocal folds, and subluxation of the vocal folds. 2. Identification and management of voice disorders in the long-term care facility are essential for the prevention and amelioration of these problems. 3. A correct diagnosis must be made before the initiation of any treatment. The medical records, clinical findings, and auscultatory, physical, and radiologic examinations are used as aids to make an accurate diagnosis. 4. Patients who suffer from these problems respond well to voice therapy, and a combination of voice therapy and diet control (with gastrostomy tubes) is often necessary to prevent future problems. 5. Communicable diseases should not affect the management of these patients.Labin Labin () is a settlement in the Municipality of Cerknica in the traditional region of Styria in Slovenia. It is located in the valley of Peca Creek. The settlement of Krvavec is located just across the border in the Municipality of Idrija. The area is part of the traditional region of Lower Styria. The municipality is now included in the Central Slovenia Statistical Region. Name The name Labin is derived from the Slovene common noun labna'sweet willow', referring to the willow trees that grow in the valley. In the past, the Slovene name was Vodnik.

History One of the largest prehistoric mounds in Slovenia, the Petek Mound, is located in the upper part of the settlement. A border-stone with a fence on top of it was discovered in the 1950s.
Mass grave Labin is the site of a former concentration camp established by the Nazis in the Second World War, during the occupation of Slovenia. It contained the remains of at least fifty victims of the camp. It was known as the Caplje Refuge ().
According to an oral tradition, the site was founded by Jože Babi?, the head of local forestry.

At the time, his assistant Tomaž Babi? was working for Josip Štursa who
